

My Conscious Wellness

Android Music Player set up for your Instrument

1. Charge the music player and connect to wifi
2. Make sure you have VLC media loaded on the player. If not, please add it from the App Store (looks like a construction pylon)

3. Download onto your player “Biz Dameon” by clicking this link through your email or search engine <https://airdroid.at/660123>
4. Allow access when you receive pop-ups requesting access.
5. Allow permission for the app to download and select continue
6. Allow Chrome permission to download if requested. If not, you can ignore this aspect.
7. Confirm to install
8. Select continue regarding allowing the device to connect
9. Once the app installs, you will see an option to name your player so we know it is yours, so we can download the tracks. Please enter your first name.

10. When in the Biz Daemon app please select the following:
 - a. Click on the “Remote control” and allow permission for “Accessibility” (in case we need to help from a distance)
 - b. Click on “View mode” and allow accessibility
 - c. Click on “File Storage” and enable storage so we can transfer your files.
11. You can skip all other permissions, like video, audio, and microphone. (The Skip button for this may not show up for about 30 seconds, so please be patient while moving through this:) No other accessibility or storage is needed for this app.

This allows remote access to only download frequencies for this app and no other access to your player. The Biz Daemon app might show on the last screen on your player. You can move it to your main screen; you may need to move some icons off the main screen to make space.

All of this allows you to leave the player on wifi to load the frequencies and begin enjoying to play with our new instrument.
